Under the Cricket and Katydid Moon

by Bill Felker

Like Altair and Vega, we ride the night sky alone reflecting only the light that shines on us.

—Rin-no-ji, Nikko
trans. by Sam Hamill

The dapples of light and half-light under the full Cricket and Katydid Moon easily merge summer and autumn. I walk at night between the patches of white and dark, between my garden and the woods. There is no wind. The moon is high and round. The Summer Triangle of Altair and Deneb and Vega flees west before it.

By the shining river, ironweed and Joe Pye seeds are soft and gray, wingstem stiff and prickly. Late zigzag goldenrod and snakeroot flicker in the moonlight, complement the small-flowered asters. A few brittle jumpseeds jump. A few large-flowered swamp bidens glow at the edge of the wetland.

Much of the canopy is still intact. The oaks and sycamores, Osage orange and maples still filter and stagger the light. The moon only breaks completely through where box elders or cottonwoods or black walnuts have shed their leaves.

I follow the crinkling sound of the water. Frost is still days away. Katydids and crickets still call around me, grating and chirping and whistling, intermittent like the darkness from one clearing of the woods to the next.

In the sun, all the different pieces of the season are stark and clear, so linear that they point to winter. But under the stars and the full of the moon, everything comes together, disconnected from daytime meaning.

We, like they, only reflect the light that shines on us. We and the land and time make gentle sense together, the stippled coat of a single creature.

Draft Animal-Power Field Days at Cornish Fairgrounds

The 2017 Draft Animal-Power Field Days will be held September 29th through October 1st at the Cornish, New Hampshire Fairgrounds. This three-day educational event celebrates the use of draft animals: horses, ponies, oxen, and mules, in modern day farming and logging in New England and New York.

Friday, September 29th will offer all-day intensive workshops for beginning and advanced teamsters on tillage and cultivation, forestry, farm planning, and horse training. There will also be a workshop for timber forest landowners and foresters who want to learn about the advantages of using draft animals in forest management and silviculture.

Saturday, September 30th is a day for everyone interested in animal power with over 25 workshops on plowing, haying, working with animals, equipment, blacksmithing, timber framing, wagon rides, and much more. There will be working horses, ponies, oxen, and mules demonstrations all day long.

Entertainment will include a square dance Friday night, draft animal ballads played on the fiddle, plus music around the campfire on Saturday.

Sunday, October 1st is a full half-day including an obstacle course with horses, oxen, and mules, a multiple-hitch of horses, a harness raffle and live benefit auction of equipment, tack, art, farm products and a 10'x14' timber frame.

The Draft Animal-Power Field Days is presented by the Draft Animal-Power Network. For more information, go to www.draftanimnlpower.com, call (802) 763-0771 or e-mail dapnetinfo@gmail.com.

Billings Farm & Museum

Fall Festivities

Billings Farm & Museum has served as a gateway to Vermont's rural heritage for over 1.5 million visitors. Billings Farm is an operating Jersey dairy farm that continues a 145-year tradition of agricultural excellence and offers farm programs and historical exhibits that explore Vermont's rural heritage and values. In addition to the following special events, you can visit the farm for Wagon Ride Wednesdays and Foodways Fridays. Whether you are a visitor or make Vermont your home, plan a trip to Billings Farm & Museum this fall. You'll have a great time!

Labor & Leisure

Billings Farm & Museum will host Labor & Leisure Day on Saturday, September 2, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. It's a day of work and fun on the farm! Wagon rides, building split rail fencing, ice cream making, historic "base ball" and laundry – using a washboard and wringer. There's ice cream making with samples for all—after the cranking is done! Wagon rides are from 10:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

31st Annual Quilt Exhibition

The 31st Annual Quilt Exhibition will run through September 17, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, featuring quilts made by Windsor County quilters.

The exhibition will include quilting activities and demonstrations with quilters on hand to discuss their work. Challenge quilts made by the Heart of the Land Quilter's Guild will also be exhibited.

Considered both a creative and utilitarian household craft, renewed interest in the quilting tradition dovetails with the museum's mission of celebrating Vermont's rural heritage. Since 1985, over 280 quilters have submitted more than 1,000 quilts for exhibit at the Farm & Museum.

Traditional Craft Saturdays

The 12th Annual Traditional Craft Saturdays take place on Saturdays in September, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Visitors can explore a series of Vermont crafts—their history, process, and uses—through informal learning and discovery. A different craft will be featured each week.

Saturday, September 2—Quilting with the Billings Farm & Museum Staff. In celebration of the 31st Annual Quilt Exhibition, the staff will demonstrate the basics of hand quilting. Visitors are invited to try hand quilting, piecing, and designing a quilt.

Saturday, September 9—Sprang with Tiana St. James of Enfield, NH. Tiana will demonstrate the historic textile craft of sprang—an ancient method of constructing fabric that has a natural elasticity. The technique involves twisting the threads of a fixed warp in a method similar to braiding.

Saturday, September 16—American Handmade Redware Pottery with Rick Hamelin of Warren, MA. Master Potter Rick Hamelin creates authentic reproductions and original red earthenware with his special clay mix and unique lead-free glaze.

Saturday, September 24—The Farm & Museum will host the VT Woodworkers Forest Festival Weekend on September 23 & 24. See the extraordinary talent of Vermont's wood craftsmen and all aspects of the "forest to finished product." Meet the artisans and shop for wood products. Enjoy hands-on, family-friendly programs and activities at the Billings Farm & Museum and Marsh-Billings-Rockefeller National Historical Park. Local wood, local good!

Pumpkin & Apple Celebration

The Annual Pumpkin & Apple Celebration is coming on Saturday and Sunday, September 30 & October 1 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. This family-friendly celebration features engaging hands-on activities, programs, and displays centered around these vital crops and explores their historical importance and many uses.

Take the apple taste test and vote for your favorite! Lend a hand pressing cider, making pumpkin or apple ice cream, and peeling apples for drying. Join in the "pumpkin and apple fun" with apple races, pumpkin bowling, apples-on-a-string, sampling pumpkin bread, and watch apple butter being made in the farmhouse kitchen. Horse-drawn wagon rides are included with admission.

Billings Farm & Museum is open daily April 1 through October 31, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., weekends November – February, and Christmas & Presidents' weeks, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Admission: adults $15, 62 & over $14, children 5-15 $8, ages 3-4 $4, age 2 & under free. Includes all activities and programs, plus the operating dairy farm, farm life exhibits, and the restored and furnished 1890 Farm House. The Farm & Museum is located one-half mile north of the Woodstock village green on VT Rt. 12. For information call (802) 457-2355. Visit www.billingsfarm.org.

From the Pasture Hill

These things I see from the pasture hill;—
An old man fixing his cider mill;
Two women working down below
In the Ox-bow valley, where flowers grow;
Two icemen loading a rattling truck,
A pair of gardeners forking muck;
While over the river I see two crows
Being chased by two little kingbird foes.
And down the road ride Joe and Sue
On a red-wheeled bicycle built for two.

Always two, and I want to cry
For the hurt in my heart; and I don't know why
My heart goes out from the pasture hill
To the lone man fixing his cider mill

"Let Your Fingers Do The Trotting"

Bicentennial Celebration at the Athens Brick Meetinghouse

The Athens Brick Meetinghouse turns 200 this year! And to celebrate this bicentennial the Athens Historic Preservation Society will be hosting a birthday party on September 23, 2017. Everyone is invited.

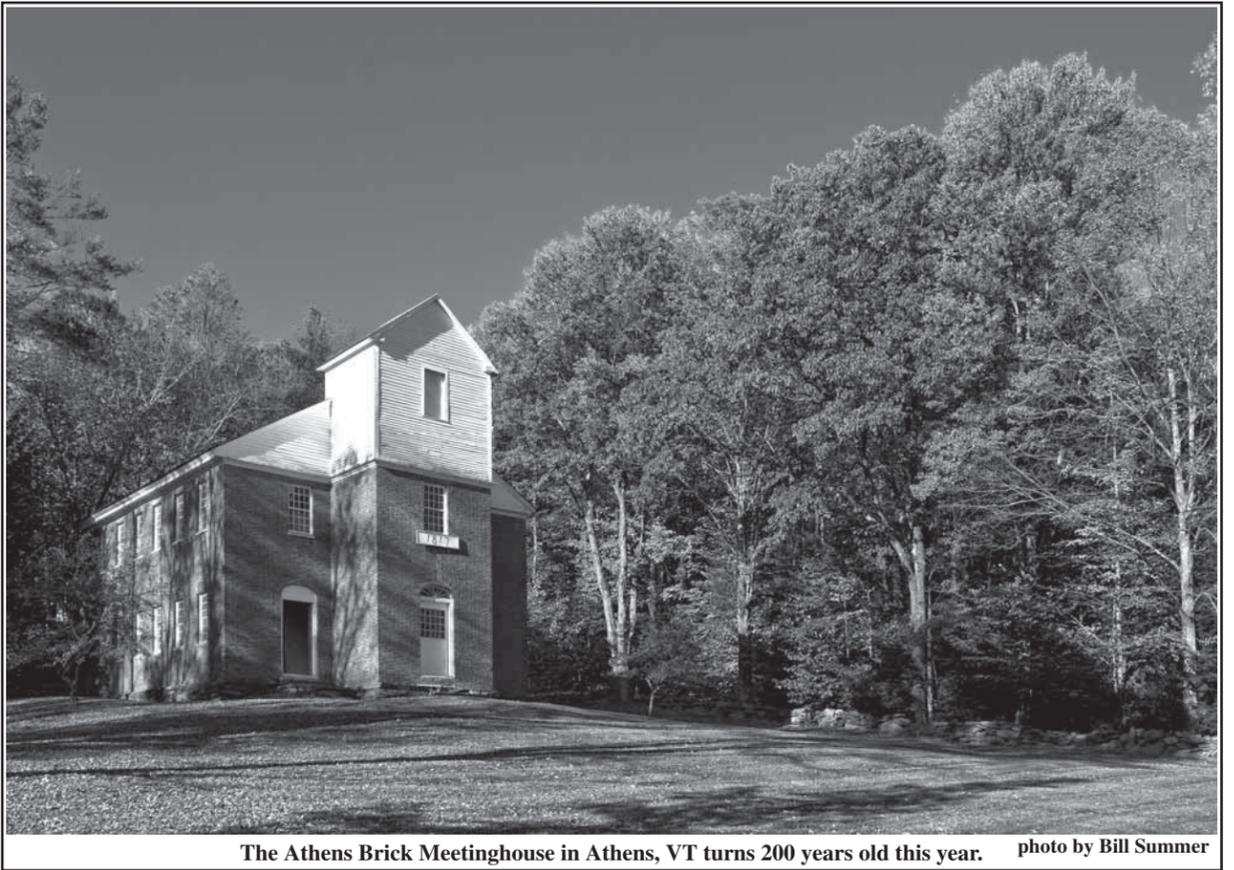

Friends, neighbors and history enthusiasts will gather with us on the Meetinghouse Common at 1:00 p.m. After some music and light refreshments, there will be a ribbon cutting ceremony followed by some speakers and presentations. More music, BBQ, ice cream sundaes, fun and games will follow outside on the Common.

The Brick Meetinghouse was closed to the public a few years ago due to structural issues. But over the past year a stabilization project has addressed the most significant issues causing concern about safety in the building. Along with Town funds, a major source of the funding that enabled this work to proceed was a $20,000 grant from the Vermont Division for Historic Preservation along with a generous grant from the Windham Foundation and a grant from the Crosby-Gannett Fund. In addition many generous donations from the public to the Athens Historic Preservation Society made this effort possible. This day of celebration will be the first opportunity for the public to see the results of this work.

The Meetinghouse is historically significant to the Windham County region, and particularly the other twelve towns—Grafton, Rockingham, Townshend, Londonderry, Weston, Chester, Acton, Springfield, Landgrove, Windham, Putney and Mt. Holly—which comprised the “Old Athens Circuit.” Circuit preachers from Athens, traveled out to these twelve towns to perform religious services. Quarterly meetings of members from all of these towns often lasted two days here at the Meetinghouse which came to be known as the “Mother Church.”

An Autumn Bouquet

by Norman C. Tice, circa 1917

One morning in September I stood upon the woodbine twined piazza of an old homestead. The day was dark and dull and the enshrouding mists hung low in the valley covering the woodlands with a dull blue mantle. I murmured against the season that was on the wane and thought how soon the rich coloring would fade under the ruthless hand of winter which would clutch the hills and the valleys in his rude grasp.

There is a beauty in our New England autumns that excels all other seasons in gorgeousness and riot of coloring. No summer can rival the soft blue skies of the Indian Summer.

If some magician could touch the landscape with his magical wand and put it to sleep in all its glory and retain it thus for us to behold or if some true artist could paint a picture showing the mysterious ways of the autumn woods then we could have something to cheer us on through the winter days.

As I looked down the narrow walks of the old-fashioned garden I saw the waste of gaunt seed stalks and swaying shriveled leaf. All the old-fashioned flowers—the briar roses, the hollyhocks, the bunch pinks, and the honeysuckles had blossomed long ago and their brown seed cases rattled in the chill morning breeze.

Now is the time to seek autumn bouquets in the fields and woodlands beside the roads and old stone walls and along the banks of the meadow brook. The grass is still soft and green in its wealth of aftergrowth. Vines hang pendant from rough board fences and over the gray stones that outline the fields. The woodbine leaves a ruddy trail. Goldenrods and frost flowers gleam in the field and wood. Nuts are falling from the trees and the busy chatter of squirrels is heard. From the orchard is wafted the spicy odor of apples. Thistle-down and milkweed seeds sail along in the breeze on their voyages.

But the short autumn day is hastening away. The sun drops slowly behind the maple grove early in the afternoon and a twilight glow spreads over the landscape. The fog creeps forth from the river bank and as we hurry homeward we gather a selection for our autumn bouquet. One can make as gorgeous a bouquet in September and October as you can from some cultivated garden plot earlier in the season.

As we wander along the lanes and through the fields we secure for our bouquet many varieties of goldenrod. Some species are plummy and some droop gracefully while others have the flowers only rising from the upper side of the stalk. We pluck long stalks of the cardinal's flaming flowers and close beside it we place the fringed gentian with its petals approaching the famous dye of Tyre in color.

We pull long trails of clematis from the vines that wreath with bands of softness the stone walls and the fences. As we pass along the woodroad we would not forget the many ruddy berries for our bouquet. There are the scarlet barberries and the orange berries of the bittersweet which envelopes the branches of the wild crab with its vines. In the shelter of the shrubbery we find the milk white berries of the cohosh and the red cohosh with its cherry like fruit. Beside the path and half concealed by the drooping foliage gleam the brilliant berries of the Solomon seal and the bunchberries look like clusters of jewels in their setting of green enamel. The swaying elder bushes are covered with heavy bunches of purplish fruit.

When I again reached the homestead my arms are laden with my autumn bouquet. It is one that I am proud of and shows the fruitful fulfillment in the prophecy of the spring blooms that I admired.

“Now is the time to seek autumn bouquets in the fields and woodland beside the roads and old stone walls...”

Vermont's many handcrafted wood products are on display at the Annual Vermont Woodworking and Forest Festival at Billings Farm in Woodstock, VT

Autumn in Vermont

Woodstock's 14th Annual Vermont Woodworking & Forest Festival

Calling all lovers of farms, forests, and fine woodworking! This fall, one event celebrates those great aspects of Vermont.

The Vermont Woodworking & Forest Festival will be held on Saturday & Sunday, September 23-24, 2017 in Woodstock, Vermont at the Billings Farm & Museum and the Marsh-Billings-Rockefeller National Historical Park in Woodstock, VT from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day.

The farm and park are directly across the street from each other so visitors can park for free at Billings Farm and easily enjoy both events!

The Vermont Wood Manufacturers Association has hosted the festival for the past 14 years. Held in historic Woodstock, VT, and convenient to I-91, the event attracts visitors from around the U.S. and the globe.

Visit with about 20 artisan vendors and woodworking demonstrators who will be in the Billings Visitor Center, barn, and on the farm lawn. Vermont wooden furniture, utensils, jewelry, bowls, cutting boards, home & kitchen accessories & other woodware, toys, cabinetry, flooring, wildlife carvings, bowls, and all other products made of wood will be for sale.

The scenic backdrop of Billings Farm along with live music by local musician Mike Kelley and locally sourced, wood fired pizza from Woodbelly Pizza provides a perfect accompaniment for shopping or watching live wood turning demonstrations outdoors.

Vendors include many well known wood artisans from around our state Meet the draft horses, sheep, jersey cows, and chickens as you discover more about Vermont's farming and forest heritage.

Just across the street at the Marsh-Billings-Rockefeller National Historical Park, visitors can enjoy horse-drawn wagon rides, forest walks, additional woodworking demonstrations, make your own wood crafting, and other family activities at Vermont's only National Park.

Admission ranges from free (under 3) to $14 (adults). Free parking available on site.

For more information and schedules go to vermontwoodfestival.org, call (802) 747-7900, or e-mail info@vermontwood.com.

Billings Farm & Museum is located one-half mile north of the Woodstock village green on Rt. 12. (802) 452-2355. billingsfarm.org.

9th Annual Fairy House Festival

During the last weekend of September, on Saturday, September 23rd, and Sunday, September 24th, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., The Nature Museum will present its 9th Annual Fairy House Festival. This enchanting family experience is held in the forests of Grafton, one of the 10 most beautiful places in America as named by USA Today.

Visitors will follow a nature path sprinkled with charming fairy houses, then return to The Nature Museum to create their own fairy dwellings in the gardens. Hands-on crafts, face painting and bubbles round out this interactive and magical experience for all.

Light refreshments will be available for purchase and picnicking is encouraged.

Last year over 40 individuals, families, and organizations volunteered to construct the fairy village of charming houses that were carefully placed along a nature trail. Knotholes became front doors, seashells transformed into bathtubs, acorn caps became dinnerware and twigs were woven into ladders. If you are interested in volunteering this year, please contact the Museum by September 8.

Advance tickets to the festival can be purchased at The Nature Museum. Advance ticket prices are $10 adults, $8 seniors, (64+) $4 children (3-17), under 2 free. Day-of tickets at the gate are $12 adults, $10 seniors (64+), $5 children (3-17), under 2 free.

The Fairy House Festival is the perfect opportunity to rekindle curiosity, imagination and learning in a shared celebration of nature. This is a puckish annual tradition that inspires people of all ages to take a closer look at the natural world.

The Fairy House Festival benefits the Museum's environmental education programs as well as enabling the Museum to update and renew its natural history displays.

The Nature Museum is located at 186 Townshend Rd. in Grafton, VT. (802) 843-2111. info@nature-museum.org. Find information about upcoming events on The Nature Museum's Facebook page at www.facebook.com/naturemuseumatgraffton and on our website at www.nature-museum.org.

Windmill Hill Pinnacle Association Fall Outings

The Pinnacle is the highest and most scenic peak (+/-1683 feet) in Westminster, VT. It is located on the Windmill Ridge, straddling the Brookline/Westminster, VT line. The view from the Pinnacle overlooks Hedgehog Gulf in Brookline and westward to Mount Snow and Stratton Mountain, over 20 miles away.

The dream of conserving the Pinnacle developed as a use of the Jamie Latham Memorial Fund, established in November 1991 to honor a young man who had loved this beautiful spot. The Pinnacle has expanded its land-conservation efforts, linked and extended trail systems, and inspired dedicated volunteers.

Pinnacle lands—with the inclusion of additions in the Bald Hill and Athens Dome areas—now consist of 1,938 +/- acres in Rockingham, Athens, Grafton, Brookline, and Westminster. These publicly-accessible lands include a 25-mile hiking trail system and wildlife sanctuary. We invite you to experience these beautiful places, help us protect these special habitats, and enjoy our recreational and educational programs.

Lecture by David Sobel: "Wet Sneakers and Muddy Clothes: The Importance of Nature-Based Play and Education." This free program will take place at the Compass School, 7892 US Rt. 5, Westminster, VT from 7-8:30 p.m.

Is it actually important for children to play in nature? How does it affect their bodies, minds, and character? Does it give them a better connection to the earth and make them active stewards of its resources?

Everyone recognizes that it's easier for parents to let their children stay inside—no ticks, no sunburn, no extra vigilance or transportation needed. Even if one supports the importance and relevance of play outside in nature, how is it possible to get children off their phones and electronic games without a struggle? For teachers, parents, and adults who care and want something more for children, David Sobel's discussion, should give some answers.

A well-known author, teacher, and nature activist, Sobel will discuss why children need to play outside in nature for their own well-being and for their future stewardship of the earth. He'll also suggest ways to get children off their devices and out into nature.

David Sobel has written extensively on the topic of children and hands-on education and play in nature. His numerous books—from Wild Play: Parenting Adventures in the Great Outdoors to Place-Based Education: Connecting Classrooms and Communities and Childhood and Nature: Design Principles for Educators, plus other works focusing on different age levels—offer parents and teachers insights into the value, appeal, and techniques of outdoor experiences.

Sobel is on the faculty of Antioch New England Graduate School and has been the director of Teacher Certification Programs there since 1997. His program is presented by the Windmill Hill Pinnacle Association, co-sponsored by The Nature Museum and Windham Woodlands Regional Association, and supported by the Rotary Clubs of Bellows Falls and Springfield, VT.

Accessibility Day. 10:45 a.m. to 4 p.m. This year's site is a new one for this once-a-year opportunity for a vehicle ride to a remote and beautiful site for lunch. The private property, owned by a friend of WHPA, sits on the Windmill Ridgeline between the Pinnacle and Paul's Ledges, and the spectacular view offers a wide deep vista to the ski mountains of Mt. Snow, Stratton, Bromley, Okemo, and beyond.

If you're an adult who has difficulty walking, this is your chance to visit a rural spot with a grandchild or friend. The program's popularity and need for four-wheel-drive vehicles make advance registrations a MUST for riders. Hikers do not need to pre-register. Bring water, bag lunch, and sweater for chilly weather. Meet at Westminster West Church at 10:45 a.m. to carpool. Register with Bev Major at (802) 387-5737 or Elaine Gordon at (802) 869-6103. Held in sunny or cloudy weather only; canceled in rain or bad weather.

Sunday, September 24

Annual West Hill Grinder. Starts at 9 or 10 a.m. depending on the route selected. Diny and Jim Sweitzer of the West Hill Shop in Putney, VT, are making the 2017 West Hill Grinder a biking fundraiser for the Windmill Hill Pinnacle Association.

Three different routes offer a variety of rural biking challenges for intermediate and advanced bicyclists. Distances range from 19-39 miles and wind through Westminster, Athens, Brookline, and Putney on town dirt roads, Class-4 woods roads, and Pinnacle hiking trails, with a bit of pavement here and there. The West-West Loop is the easiest.

Individual, student, and family rates include lunch catered by John Labine of Taco Barn after the event. Start and finish will be at High Meadows Farm in Putney, VT, which offers water, facilities, protected seating, and onsite parking.

For directions to the farm, visit www.highmeadowsfarm.com. Go to www.bikereg.com and search for West Hill Grinder for prices, info on the routes and bike equipment necessary, and to register. Visit www.westhillshop.com and the West Hill Shop's Facebook page. Or call the Sweitzers at (802) 387-5718.

Saturday, October 7

Moonlight Hike on Bald Hill. 7-9 p.m. Join Vanessa Stern, Bald Hill Committee Chair and Windmill Hill Pinnacle Association Board Member, for this special full-moon experience where even familiar features look different and more mysterious in the moonlight. Meet at the Covered Bridge kiosk at 232 Covered Bridge Road in Westminster. For info and reservation, call (802) 463-4948.

Saturday, October 28

Walk to Ober Hill Gorge and Old Homestead Cellar Hole. 1-4 p.m. The walk, featuring the newly acquired Brelsford property, will start at the Bemis Hill Road trailhead. Walk mostly downhill through rich mixed hardwoods to the long gorge, with its gurgling stream and charming waterfalls, and to the homestead complex with its remains of stonewall paddocks and a barn. Continuing north on the trail to the Rt. 35 trailhead area, this walk is a great way to learn about the northern end of the Windmill Ridge trail system. A car shuttle will be arranged to return participants to cars.

Bring water, snack, and clothing appropriate for the weather. Pre-registration is required. Contact Camilla Roberts at (802) 869-1388 or camil@vermontel.net.

Digging

Today I think
Only with scents,—scents dead leaves yield,
And bracken, and wild carrot's seed,
And the square mustard field;

Odours that rise
When the spade wounds the root of tree,
Rose, currant, raspberry, or gout-weed,
Rhubarb or celery;

The smoke's smell, too,
Flowing from where a bonfire burns
The dead, the waste, the dangerous,
And all to sweetness turns.

It is enough
To smell, to crumble the dark earth,
While the robin sings over again
Sad songs of Autumn mirth.

Recipes from a Century Past

Blue Skies, Colorful Days, and Crisp Ripe Apples!

Apple Cobbler

Pare and quarter enough tart apples to fill a baking dish three-fourths full. Cover with a rich baking powder biscuit dough made soft enough to stir; spread it over the apples without rolling. Make several cuts in the center to allow the steam to escape. Bake for three quarters of an hour and serve hot with sugar and rich cream.

To Dry Apples

Select sound fruit that has matured. Pare, core, and quarter and slice lengthwise. String and dry near the fire or spread on frames covered with muslin or netting and let dry in the sun. If the winter apples are not keeping well it is a good plan to dry them to prevent waste. Although some have a prejudice against dried apples they can be made very palatable with a little care.

Apple After Thought

Take one pint of nice apple sauce, sweetened to taste; stir in the yolks of 2 eggs, well beaten. Bake for 15 minutes. Cover with a meringue made of 2 well-beaten whites and ½ cup of powdered sugar. Return to the oven and brown.

Apples in Maple Syrup

Cut eight apples in halves and remove the cores with a teaspoon; put into a baking pan with 1 cup of maple syrup and one and one-half cup of water and 2 tablespoons butter. Bake until the syrup is thick and serve with whipped cream.

Apple Brown Betty

Pare and chop six apples. Place a layer of apple in a well-buttered pudding dish, then a layer of bread crumbs; sprinkle with brown sugar and cinnamon; repeat until the dish is full; add several generous lumps of butter and pour sweet milk or hot water on until it comes within an inch of the top of the pan. Bake in a moderate oven until brown and serve with plain or whipped cream.

Indian Pudding With Apples

Scald two quarts of sweet milk. Stir in a cup of corn-meal. Stir until the mixture thickens. Remove from the fire. Add one and one-sixth cups of molasses, one teaspoon of salt, one-half teaspoon each of nutmeg and cinnamon, and two cups of sweet apples pared, cored, and quartered. Pour into a deep pudding dish and bake for four hours. When the pudding has baked for one and one-half hours, add without stirring one pint of cold milk. Serve with cream and sugar or syrup.

A Vermont Almanack for Early Fall

Phases of the The Cricket and Katydid Moon and the Corn Harvest Moon

September 6: The Cricket and Katydid Moon is full at 2:03 a.m. September 13: The moon enters its final quarter at 1:25 a.m. and lunar perigee (when the moon is closest to Earth) September 20: The Corn Harvest Moon is new at 12:30 a.m. September 27: The moon enters its second quarter at 8:54 p.m. and reaches apogee (when it is farthest from Earth).

The Sun's Progress

The Sun enters Libra and reaches equinox at 3:02 p.m. on September 22.

The Planets

Venus is in Virgo, retaining its position as the morning star, shadowed by Mars (the two planets in conjunction on October 5). Jupiter blends with the sunset in the early fall, disappearing from view by October 15. Saturn is visible along the western horizon at dusk.

The Stars

By sunrise, Orion has shifted to the center of the heavens. January's Leo and its brightest star, Regulus, have come up in the east, and the Great Square is following Hercules into the Ocean.

Meteorology

Weather history suggests that cold waves usually reach Vermont about the following dates: September 2, 8, 12, 15, 20, 24 and 29. Fish, game, livestock and people tend to feed more and are more active (and more troublesome) as the barometer falls one to three days before these weather systems.

Full moon on September 6 and new moon on September 20 increase the likelihood of frost and severe weather. Lunar perigee on September 13 adds to the likelihood of mid-month chill.

The Natural Calendar for September

September 1 – As the day moves to within a few degrees of equinox, sycamores, tulip trees, slippery elms, poplars, locust, elms, box elders, buckeyes, dogwoods, chinquapin oaks, and lindens, may begin to show their autumn colors.

September 2 – Do your Thanksgiving turkey marketing now before the leaves turn!

September 3 – When you see shades of pink on the dogwood trees, then cut your gourds, winter squash and pumpkins for winter storage.

September 4 – Expect frost after the first weather system of the month moves east.

September 5 – When asters bloom in the waysides and bur marigolds flower in the swamps, then cut corn for silage.

September 6 – Today is full moon day.

September 7 – When the first black walnut trees are almost bare, complete the last cut of alfalfa.

September 8 – The September 8 weather system usually ushers in the season of early fall, and full moon on the 6th is very likely to help it along.

September 9 – Temperatures, which began to cool at the pivot time of August 10, now decline more noticeably.

September 10 – When microthema spider webs are all over in the woods, that's the time to pick fall apples.

September 11 – When crickets songs are slow, then be ready to cover your tender flowers and vegetables: frost could be on the way that night.

September 12 – Today marks the start of a decline in percentage of daily sunshine.

September 13 – The moon reaches perigee today, making storms and frost more likely September 14 – Ragweed season finally comes to a close.

September 15 – Sow next spring's spinach and garlic as the moon turns new.

A family out for a horse and buggy ride on the back of Bald Mountain in Rutland, VT, circa September 1915. Photo from Rutland Historical Society, Dr. George Marshall Lantern Slide Collection.

September 16 – Hunt the damp woods for puffball mushrooms.

September 17 – Aster blossoms start to disappear; their departure parallels the leaf fall, the end of the insect season, the end of the spiderweb season and an acceleration in bird migration.

September 18 – When most of the black walnuts have fallen and wood nettle seeds are black and brittle, then begin your autumn bulb planting and transplanting of perennials in the garden.

September 19 – Halloween crops come to town.

September 20 – The equinox front often brings a likelihood of frost as it departs east, and today's new moon increases the probability of cold.

September 21 – Dig your potatoes before a hard freeze threatens.

September 22 – Check the weight of animals about to be bred and adjust feed as needed.

September 24 – Prices rise for goat's milk and remain higher through the winter.

September 24 – The September 24 cold front doubles the chances for frost over the chances just a week ago..

September 25 – Acorns are falling, tempting deer to seek them out.

September 26 – Crab apples are thinning. Color spreads across the red maples. Blush appears on the sweet gums.

September 27 – The moon reaches apogee today, decreasing the chance for late September frost.

September 28 – Increase scouting for oak trees and signs of deer in the woods as the undergrowth thins.

September 29 – Average temperatures now start to fall at the rate of about four degrees per week.

September 30 – Milkweed pods burst in the wind. Japanese beetles complete their season. Daddy longlegs disappear from the undergrowth, and spiders of all kinds move indoors. Damselflies are rare along the rivers now, and darners have left their ponds.

Surplus of Green Tomatoes? Try This Recipe, circa 1917

— Green Tomato Mince Meat —

Chop one peck green tomatoes fine. Drain off the juice. Place the tomato pulp in a large kettle and cover with hot water, scald and drain.

Repeat this operation until you have scalded and drained three times. Be sure to have the tomato cooked tender during the three times scalding.

Now add five pounds brown sugar. Brown and white can be used in combination or any kind of syrup or maple sugar which you may have. Add two pounds raisins, one cup suet chopped fine, one and one-half cups vinegar, three tablespoons salt, two lemons chopped fine, and one peck apples chopped fine.

Boil together until all is thoroughly cooked then add two tablespoons cinnamon, one tablespoon cloves, and one tablespoon nutmeg.

Place in jars the usual way. This recipe will make seven quarts mince meat which cannot be distinguished from mince meat made with meat.

Staying On

by Pamela Hayes Rehlen

Several years ago, Charles Knight did a courageous thing that many others who have summered on Lake Bomoseen have wistfully contemplated. In September, he looked around the rambling, 1890s, needing-some-repairs, family cottage that he'd been coming to for almost half a century, and he thought, 'This year, I'm not going back. I'm going to stay on.'

That was the year Charles's life had altered dramatically. He'd unexpectedly lost his job. He was going through a divorce. His fiftieth birthday was approaching in November. Every Labor Day since he was a toddler, he'd helped close up his family's summer place. He'd always felt one overwhelming emotion, 'I don't want to leave.'

That year, with so much of his life unsettled, he didn't leave. He stayed put.

On old maps, Charles's summer place is designated as 'Reed's Lakeview Cottage,' located on Clement's Point, one of Lake Bomoseen's finest shoreline promontories.

It was built in the spring of 1891 by John Reed, who had been given the land by his long-time employer Percival

"You really only have two choices, to be casual or to be frantic...It's very hard to be upset on days like this."

Clement, one-time bank president, one-time Rutland mayor, one-time Vermont governor, and, as was often done somewhere in a new house—and as Charles liked to point out to visitors—Reed signed his name and the building date on a plank in a downstairs bedroom wall.

For forty years, Reed used his Adirondack-style cottage with its panoramic views toward the east shore of Lake Bomoseen and the green mountains beyond. At his death—because he had no family—he deeded his summer home back to the Clements.

Although Percival Clement's son Tom had moved away from Vermont and lived in Philadelphia, he took over his father's place. In Philadelphia, Tom was neighbor to Daniel Knight, Joyce Knight, and the couple's four children Edward, Jennifer, Carol and Charles.

As well as his neighbor, Knight was Tom's attorney, and over time they had all grown to be close friends. Each summer Daniel loaded his young family into the car and drove semi-retired Tom up to his cottage on Lake Bomoseen. After they arrived, the Knights would stay for a week.

Charles first came to the lake when he was two and remembered the summer place as always lively. He remembered a stream of visitors, lots of Rutland people as well as genial out-of-staters. He remembered marathon bridge games played on the porch or in the dim, low-ceilinged living room, full of Edwardian and Adirondack furniture left behind from the John Reed and Percival Clement years.

After Tom's death, Charles's father bought the cottage, and over the years the Knights devised a financial means to hold on to the place by renting it out between their own family vacations.

For one hundred and twenty years, Reed's 'Lake View Cottage' hadn't altered in any significant way. It became Charles's protective cocoon as he stayed on through mellow September.

He explained his feelings to a few curious people, "You really only have two choices, to be casual or to be frantic." And then he'd add, "It's very hard to be upset on days like this."

The lake—never very busy during the week—quieted to a steady, sunny drowsiness, and Charles settled into an

from the photo collection of the Knight family
Charles Knight's cottage on Lake Bomoseen, originally built by John Reed in 1891.

Adirondack chair out under the oaks, hemlocks, and maples that dot Clement's Point.

At night, when the temperature dropped, he piled up logs and lit a fire in the living room's massive fieldstone fireplace. He pulled his sleeping bag close to the hearth.

Because the Knight cottage had never been winterized, Charles figured that by Columbus Day he was going to have to find and rent another nearby place. But he put that off for awhile in order to drowse in the sun.

He visited the Fair Haven Congregational Church, and some church representatives returned the call. He gave a talk about old postcards—he had a comprehensive collection of Bomoseen views—to the Castleton Historical Society. He was visited by welcoming residents of the year-round lake community he'd never before realized existed.

He went to see Davene and Jerry Brown hoping that he could fashion a Thoreau/Walden-Pond-style winter existence for himself caretaking their lake-center Neshobe Island. But they didn't think that would be possible.

Slowly, the weather turned. The point began to be buffeted by steady, cold winds, and his cottage wasn't equipped for the turning of the year.

There were just too many practical difficulties. Charles came to see that he was going to have to leave the beloved time machine, full of John Reed's and Percival Clement's furniture, his own family's decades-long accumulation of memorabilia, and go home to Philadelphia.

But it had been a glorious fall, and he'd lived out a lifetime dream. He'd done what so many would like to do and few accomplish. He'd said to himself at a difficult juncture in his life, "If not now, when?"

And at the end of the season, at a beloved place, not forever, but for awhile, he'd stayed on.

Horse in Pasture

All fall the farm horse at the bars
Just stands, not watching the passing cars,
Not moving his eyes across the view,
Not even—unlike the cattle—feeding.
Poor horse, I say; nothing to do,
Like knitting or whittling, rocking, reading.

Truly Unique Gift Shop Featuring Vermont-Made Crafts for Over 33 Years!

by Charles Sutton

Like so many other visitors to Vermont, Gary and Joanne Fratrach decided they just had to move here. And so this New Jersey couple did just that during the summer of 1984, and opened The Truly Unique Gift Shop in Rutland, VT where they have been shopkeepers ever since. Look for an attractive taupe-colored building on the south side of the road with a stunning life-size wire moose in the adjacent yard.

From the start, Joanna said 97 percent of their gifts are made in America, and many of them by Vermont crafters and producers.

Originally the store sold antique furniture which Gary spent most of his time hunting down and refinishing. Oak in particular was in high demand. Then suddenly one day no one wanted it any more, as tastes switched to more modern furnishings.

Gary recalls one amusing story where a couple made two trips to the store before buying a half a dozen pieces including tables and dressers which the shopkeepers were using for shelving and displaying countless gifts. The shop was in a brief disarray with no place for the small stuff, but it was worth it as it was a big furniture sales day.

In the ensuing years the couple said the store has gained a national reputation as a travel destination for high quality American made gift items. If there has been any trend in recent years, Joanne said it has been that shoppers want what is functional as well as pleasing to look at and of good quality.

Truly Unique Gift Shop invites you to come and browse.

Two craftspeople who have been with the shop since its opening on July 1, 1984, are John David Geery, a West Rutland photographer; and Catherine Beliveau, a Burlington potter. Geery moved to Vermont in 1984 having been a photographer in Utah and Idaho. His works capture the great variety of lighting in Vermont scenes and its emotional impact. Geery's popular prints are available matted or framed. He specializes in animals and scenics. Look for his "Ponies in Storm". Beliveau produces functional and decorative dishes and plaques made by pressing flowers, leaves, grasses and herbs into the clay and then painting the impressions. Her creations go under the name of Mill Brook Kiln.

Many other Vermonters have had their products at Truly Unique Gifts for 20 years or more, including Jesse Billings, a Clarendon maple syrup producer. Other maple products as well as Vermont-made jams, jellies, cheeses and gourmet foods are available.

Vermont-made items include pottery, products made from slate, hand-blown glass, cards, wooden cutting boards and bowls, Danforth pewter, T-shirts, birdhouse, candles and windchimes.

Many similar gift items may be made in China and other foreign countries, but Gary and Joanne found their customers are willing to pay a little more for quality and for knowing they are supporting local craftspeople.

The shop is located on busy Route 4, a major highway connecting western and eastern Vermont. When tropical storm Irene badly disrupted this area, including its businesses, in 2011, Truly Unique had a slow month, but Gary said they still got customers who were out-of-state emergency crews working on the roads. When they had a break to go home they purchased T-shirts and other Vermont items, he recalled. Vermont-made always makes a special gift!

Truly Unique Gift Shop is located at 1114 Rt. 4 East, Rutland, VT. Open daily 10 am to 5 pm. (802) 773-7742. www.trulyuniquegiftshop.com.

The Best of Both Seasons at Vermont Farmers Market

September at the market is a transition month, when your late summer favorites are joined by early fall specialties. Juicy melons, colorful peppers and sweet berries are still available, but they share table space with the first pumpkins and gourds, not to mention luscious pears, new apples and fresh cider.

For you tomato enthusiasts, there are green tomatoes and tomatillos along with the many other varieties available. And in the category of "blink and you might miss it" keep your eyes open for husk cherries—which, if you are new to this delicacy as I was when I first saw them—are small pale orange fruits wrapped in a crinkly, paper-like husk. They look a little bit like small tomatillos. Their flavor is mild, yet quite sweet and very unique, like a cross between a tomato and a pineapple.

If you see what look like miniature watermelons being sold by the pint, they are actually Mexican cucumbers, which are also known as camelons, and have a savory taste, exactly like traditional cucumbers but with a hint of tangy lemon flavor and make a unique addition to your salads!

We hate to see summer go, but thanks to our wonderful local farmers, there is still plenty of time for summer eating, and summer adventure, while enjoying a preview of fall! It's the best of both seasons in one market.

—Gabriella Mirolo

Way Back Then

When Margaret Rudkin's Pepperidge Farm Inspired My Mother to Bake Bread

by Charles Sutton

When my father was commuting by train from Fairfield, Connecticut to New York City, one of the passengers was Henry Rudkin, a fellow Wall Street broker.

Every day Rudkin brought along up to a dozen or so freshly baked loaves of bread, home-made by his wife Margaret which were eagerly bought by people in his office. He also distributed the bread at specialty shops in that downtown area.

Margaret started baking bread in 1937 as her youngest son had asthma and was allergic to most commercially processed foods. Her bread was something he could safely eat. At the same time the owner of the Marshall's grocery stores based in Stamford, Conn., sampled her bread named after her homestead "Pepperidge Farm" and ordered more. Name sound familiar?

Margaret, who started baking bread in her kitchen, set up larger quarters in the garage, and finally had to open a commercial bakery in Norwalk. In 1961 she sold the business to Campbell Soups.

My 30-year-old mother, intrigued by Mrs. Rudkin's story, was encouraged to try baking bread herself, not as a business, but just for our family of four. She had scant cooking skills having grown up in a home with a housekeeper-cook. Undaunted and with the help of The Joy of Cooking, (first printed in 1936, and reprinted every year ever since), she embarked on baking bread, kneading the dough by hand, letting it rise at least twice before baking it.

War-time rationing was in effect, but mother always seemed to save and have enough flour for bread.

Making baking easier, Fleischmann's Co. (founded in 1868), came out during World War II with packets of Active Dry Yeast, a shelf stable granular yeast, replacing the original packaged yeast that was soft and perishable.

A gas radiator was the perfect place for the bread to rise before baking, competing for a place next to our wet, snowy mittens or gloves. I'll never forget those loaves rising higher and more inviting.

My brother Fred and I, both around 10 years old, could easily devour a whole loaf ourselves in one sitting. Butter, being rationed, was scarce, but the gentle taste of the bread wasn't ruined even when we had to cover a slice with oleomargarine.

Our home had both a wood and a gas stove in the kitchen, but mother used the latter as the temperature could be closely regulated as the loaves were baked into a golden brown.

Immediately mother's bread was a delicious success, especially when warm right out of the oven.

Birds of a Feather: Wildfowl Decoys at Shelburne Museum

The unparalleled collection of wildfowl decoys at Shelburne Museum are featured in the newly published Birds of a Feather: Wildfowl Decoys at Shelburne Museum by Kory W. Rogers, with contributions by Cynthia Byrd, Thomas Denenberg and Nancie Ravenel in association with Shelburne Museum ($65.00, Skira Rizzoli, www.rizzoliusa.com).

Bird decoys were used in North America for sport until the advent of hunting regulations in the early twentieth century. After The Lacey Act of 1900 and subsequent Migratory Bird Treaty Act of 1918, while still used to hunt, decoys also started to be collected and prized as masterpieces to American folk art.

The collection of 1,400 wildfowl decoys at Shelburne Museum was established with a 1952 gift of more than 400 superior examples from Joel Barber, a New York City architect, artist, and carver. Barber's groundbreaking 1934 book, Wild Fowl Decoys, was the first to identify the importance of bird decoys as a uniquely American art form.

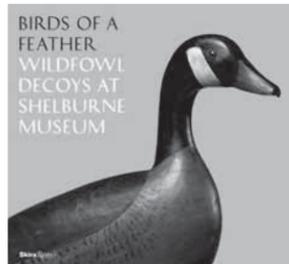

Since then, Shelburne Museum's decoy collection has grown to be one of the finest and most comprehensive in the country.

Newly researched essays

address the history of Shelburne's collection and the origins of bird decoys, as well as provide groundbreaking insights into their physical construction.

Accompanied by new photography of 250 of the most historically important and artistically carved decoys in the museum's collection, Birds of a Feather is organized by species and includes works by respected American carvers.

Decoy carvers featured in Birds of a Feather are Charles Osgood, Lem and Steve Ward, John Blair, Bill Bowman, Nathan Cobb, Jr., Lee Dudley, James T. Holly, Nathan Horner, Albert Laing, Joseph Lincoln, A. Elmer Crowell, and Charles "Shang" Wheeler.

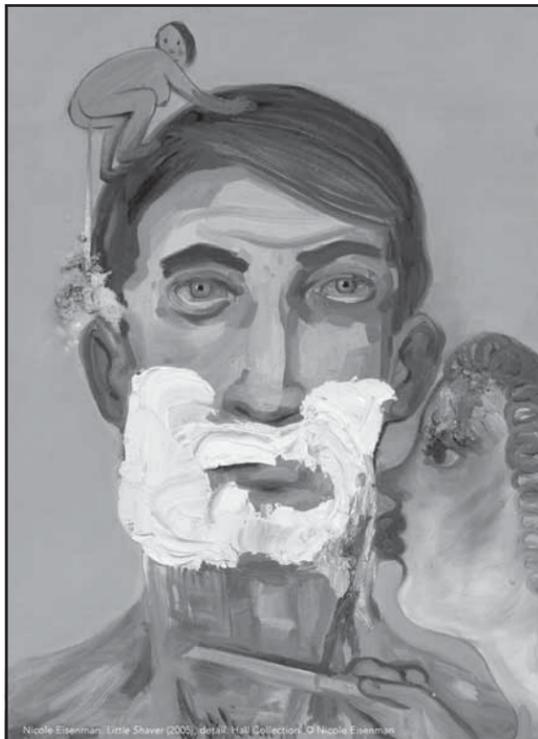

Author Kory W. Rogers worked in collaboration with three other museum curators on this remarkable book. Rogers is Curator at Shelburne Museum. He is responsible for the stewardship of the museum's collection of American wildfowl decoys.

Cynthia Byrd is a curator, folklorist and writer. She is Executive Director of the Julia A. Purnell Museum, Snow Hill, MD, and former Curator and Folklorist at The Ward Museum of Wildfowl Art, Salisbury University, Salisbury, MD.

Thomas Denenberg is director of Shelburne Museum. Before taking his position at Shelburne, he served as chief curator and deputy director of the Portland Museum of Art, Maine. He has taught at Harvard, Wake Forest, and Boston University and has held fellowships at the Smithsonian Institution and Winterthur.

Nancie Ravenel is Objects Conservator, Shelburne Museum.

Together they made a beautiful testament to wildfowl decoys.

September in Vermont

Now the year begins to slope
Towards the chilly season;
Autumn pokes his bald head up,
Summer hollers "Treason?"
I don't know and never shall
Jest the solar reason.
My! the nights are cooling off
Faster than they oughter;
Makes you think the cowbarn wall
Needs some dabs of mortar;

Makes you think the cowbarn wall
Needs some dabs of mortar;
Makes the wimmen realize
Dresses can't be shorter.

Fairground folks are in a stew
Over Fair Week weather;
Butnut thieves are hoping God
Gives them strength to gather;
Soon a dollar's worth of shot
Buys a patridge feather.

Sunny Chipmunk has the corn
That you want for dinner;
Prize-pig boys are teasing dad
How to grow a winner;
Second wives at last perceive
Stockings can't be thinner.

Sweet preserving odors float
From the kitchen quarter;
Ain't you glad you've got a farm
And a stay-home daughter;
Ain't you glad you ain't a doc,
A lawyer or exhorter!

Old Jack Frost is on the move,
Three more months to "Santy,"
Five before them heavenly smelt
From the fishing shanty;
Joyful days—when wife won't dress
Quite so stunning scanty.

Vermont Sheep & Wool Festival

The 29th Annual Vermont Sheep & Wool Festival will be held on the weekend of September 30 & October 1 at the Tunbridge Fairgrounds in Tunbridge, VT. The Festival enjoys a classic setting amidst the rolling hills of Vermont during the height of Fall Foliage.

The Vermont Sheep & Wool Festival showcases small farmers and handcrafters, with an emphasis on those businesses which grow and create with natural fibers.

Vendors Galore

Central to the festival is a marketplace of over 70 vendors, including farmers and artisans, offering natural fibers for handspinning and felting, yarns, patterns, needles & hooks, buttons, books and dyes. Also on offer will be a wide variety of equipment and supplies for spinning, weaving, knitting, crocheting, felting and other fiber arts. Handcrafted garments, accessories and household items will be available along with baskets, soaps and other handmade and farm raised products.

The Fleece Show & Sale will highlight top quality fleeces from a variety of animals for handspinners, felters and other crafters. Come early for best selection! Licensed local farm producers will feature meat, cheese, and more.

Visit the Animal Barn

The Animal Barn includes sheep, goats, llamas, alpacas and angora rabbits. This is a great opportunity to talk directly to producers about raising fiber animals. The Cashmere Goat Association will hold its 2017 CGA North American Cashmere Goat Show in our Riverside Barns.

Fiber Classes

Fiber classes take place beginning Friday, September 29, at the Tunbridge Town Hall and include spinning, felting, knitting, dyeing and more. For a full description of classes, teacher biographies and online registration, visit our website.

Fiber Arts Contests

For those interested in showing off their skills, this year's contests will offer a chance to compete for ribbons and prizes in Fiber Arts categories as well as alternative categories in photography, drawing, painting and poetry. Contest rules and entry forms are available on our website.

Shepherd Workshops and Vendor Demonstrations

Shepherd Workshops and Vendor Demos allow vendors, farmers and fiber artists the chance to share their knowledge and skills. These talks and demos are free and offered throughout the weekend. The schedules of workshops and demos for this year are listed on our website.

Our Sheep Herding Demonstrations are always popular. Located between the Dodge Gilman Building and the Food Vendors, demonstrations will include sheep herding and sheep shearing.

Try Your Hand

Don't forget to visit Floral Hall! Stop by the ever popular Drop In & Spin and try your hand on one of the spinning wheels under the tutelage of our volunteer spinners.

Spend some time with our volunteer knitters and sample yarns from our vendors at the Knit Along.

Try our Yarn & Fiber Tasting where we showcase yarns and spinning fibers from many of our vendors. Yarns, along with needles and hooks, are provided for you to sample and enjoy.

All our contests—fleece, handspun yarn and handicrafts—will be judged and exhibited at Floral Hall beginning around noon on Saturday.

Refreshments, live music, Border Collies herding!

Food vendors will offer delicious local food featuring everything from lamb, pizza, soups, salads, sandwiches and desserts. Visit the sugarhouse operated by the Orange County Maple Producers for maple syrup, maple creamers and more.

Music by Roylton Community Radio provides a background rhythm as visitors wander from building to building and visit outdoor demonstrations including the popular Border Collie herding demos and sheep shearing with Jim McRae.

Camping is available to vendors for both Friday and Saturday night and to the public on Saturday night. For information visit website.

Come to the 29th Annual Vermont Sheep & Wool Festival to support local and regional farmers and artisans in Tunbridge, VT on September 30 & October 1, 2017. Admission to the festival is $6 a day, $5 for seniors and $1 for children under 12 years. The Festival is open Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., rain or shine.

You can find details about vendors, workshops, contests and directions at www.vtsheepandwoolfest.com.

Los Angeles Guitar Quartet Comes to the Upper Valley

World-renowned for stunning precision, rich tonal colors and joyous music-making, the Grammy-winning Los Angeles Guitar Quartet performs on Wednesday, September 13 at 7 p.m. in Spaulding Auditorium of the Hopkins Center for the Arts in Hanover, NH. The artists will also take part in a post-performance Q&A.

The Los Angeles Guitar Quartet (LAGQ) will perform a program including the Hop co-commissioned Road to the Sun, written expressly for the group by jazz master Pat Metheny. Complementing this expansive musical journey are LAGQ's own arrangements of J.S. Bach's spirited Brandenburg Concerto No. 6, Brazilian jazz and music from the time of Spanish writer Miguel de Cervantes.

Performing together for three decades

For more than three decades on the concert stage, the members of the LAGQ have continually set the standard for expression and virtuosity among guitar ensembles, while perennially redefining themselves in their musical explorations. As one of the most charismatic groups performing today, their critically acclaimed transcriptions of concert masterworks provide a fresh look at the music of the past, while their interpretations of works from the contemporary and world-music realms continually break new ground. Their recitals take them to the world's top venues and festivals, and recent collaborators have included Metheny, Nico Muhly, Dweezil Zappa, Sergio Assad, and symphony orchestras across North America.

Programs including Latin, African, Far East, Irish, folk and American Classics transport listeners around the world in a single concert experience. Their 14 albums include the 2005 Grammy winner Guitar Heroes, a heartfelt salute to great guitarists of all styles; and their newest recording, New Renaissance, released in 2015, a modern take on classic works.

Four spectacular musicians

LAGQ is made up of John Dearman, Matthew Greif, William Kanengiser and Scott Tennant, who all combine LAGQ with busy careers as soloists and teachers in Los Angeles-area music programs.

The ensemble are legends among their fellow guitar players. Wrote Dartmouth Music Department guitar instructor John Muratore, "LAGQ has firmly established itself as the premiere guitar ensemble in the world, with masterful arrangements and ground-breaking new works that display flawless technique, impeccable musicianship and a thoroughly innovative approach."

Wrote the Los Angeles Times: "The world's hottest classical ensemble or its tightest pop band? However it helps you to think about the LAGQ, keep the emphasis on superlatives for its unrivaled joy, technical elan and questing spirits."

Road to the Sun

Road to the Sun was titled after Metheny's trip to Glacier National Park where he traveled the Going-to-the-Sun Road not long after an LAGQ concert. The road, completed in 1932, is a spectacular 50 mile, paved two-lane highway that bisects the park east and west.

LAGQ's John Dearman said, "The length and dramatic scope of the piece placed it among the most challenging works LAGQ has yet tackled," and LAGQ member Bill Kanengiser called it "a major addition to the guitar quartet repertoire." The group gave three performances of the work in the fall of 2016 and plan to record it in the fall of 2017.

The performance is funded in part by the Frank L. Harrington 1924 Fund No. 3.

Tickets are $17-$40. Hopkins Center for the Arts, Hanover, NH. (603) 646-2422. hop.dartmouth.edu.

North Country Reflections

Covering Ground Winning the Battle of the Weeds

by Judith Irven

Surely weeds are some of nature's greatest opportunists. They appear spontaneously in places where other plants would not stand a chance, such as in disturbed soil or along the dry salty edges of Vermont's beloved dirt roads.

And in our gardens? Within weeks of making our beds all tidy and seemingly weed-free, new weeds just pop up uninvited!

How does this happen?

First, it is helpful to understand that many weed SEEDS can lie dormant in the dark earth for a long time—ten years or longer in some cases. As soon as we dig in the soil, some of those seeds are exposed to light—a condition all young plants need to grow—which causes those cunning seeds to germinate.

Secondly, when the conditions are favorable, the ROOTS of many perennial weeds are able to spontaneously regrow from a joint or node. And additional light favors this process also.

The cycle of weeds in our gardens

The sad fact is that many aspects of normal gardening inevitably perpetuate the cycle of weeds.

For instance, as we fluff up the soil in preparation for a new row of vegetable seeds or we break up clods of earth before planting a new perennial bed, we unavoidably churn up the soil. And thus some of those dormant weed seeds and weed root fragments finish up near the surface of the soil, where they promptly respond to the added light by cheerily sprouting.

And, as we cultivate around established flowers and vegetables, it will not take long for persistent weeds with filamentous roots—like sorrel and bishop's weed—to begin to regrow. Also, as everyone knows, when you break off the tap root of a dandelion in the middle, rather than getting the whole thing out, it too will grow back into a new dandelion plant.

So before planting it is really important to manually remove as many perennial weed roots as possible. I am always on the lookout for telltale problem roots—especially those filamentous roots that run horizontally through the soil—and try to follow them back to their origin.

But to prevent surface weed seeds from germinating and the remaining weed roots from re-sprouting, we need to cover the ground and shade the soil from light.

Let's take a look at three easy ways of to cover the ground and deter those weeds.

Tarps

Tarps are inexpensive and durable, and I use them to cover any section of my vegetable garden that is temporarily empty.

My vegetable garden consists of four 12-foot square beds and every year I rotate the crops around the squares. Each year, one square will be devoted to sprawling winter squash while in the remaining three squares I use three-foot wide rows separated by narrow paths for individual crops.

During the summer, after I harvest an early crop like garlic, I cover the empty row with a 12' x 4' tarp (sold to cover wood piles) until I get around to planting some late season peas or greens.

And every fall, after the harvest is complete, I cover each square with a pair of overlapping 12' x 8' tarps. These remain in place until next season when I am ready to plant that particular square. This strategy prevents those opportunistic weeds from getting a head start in spring and it also warms the soil ahead of planting.

Mulch

Everybody knows about mulch, and indeed sometimes we see way too much of it.

A sea of mulch separating a few paltry perennials looks anything but natural. And those 'mulch volcanoes' that get heaped up around the base of trees are positively harmful. They provide a winter haven for rodents who enjoy nibbling the bark. And if they are mounded up over the root flare, it stimulates the tree to produce girdling roots at the surface. These eventually encircle the entire trunk which strangles the tree.

But, if used in moderation, mulch has a role in every garden. For instance in a new flower bed it is critical to shade the soil to prevent those weed seeds from germinating. I like to start by covering the soil with about six layers of overlapping newspaper to keep out the light. In my flower gardens I will top off the newspaper with a thin layer of finely ground bark mulch (one to two inches is plenty), whereas in my vegetable garden I cover the newspaper with fluffed up hay.

You need less mulch as the garden matures, but a small amount is often a great way to show off special plants or garden features.

Ground covering plants

The final way to deter the weeds is to use the plants themselves to shade your soil.

A carpet of groundcover around the trees and shrubs is an attractive addition (and is less work than replenishing the mulch annually). Barren Strawberry (Waldsteinia ternata), Barrenwort (Epimedium), Deadnettle (Lamium maculatum) and various types of Hardy Geranium including Geranium 'Biokova' and Geranium macrorrhizum are all well-behaved ground covers.

Also I like to position my perennials so that, as they mature, their leaves overlap and naturally shade the soil. For instance, the leaves of a single daylily plant can easily grow into a three foot circle and very little light reaches the soil beneath it. So, in a sunny border, a group of three or five daylilies becomes completely self mulching. Similarly in a shady bed, large leaved hostas and dense ferns perform the same function.

Putting it all together

This picture of the bed that surrounds our gazebo illustrates these ideas.

A narrow ribbon of mulch not only deters the weeds but also draws attention to the stepping stone path that meanders through the bed. The remainder of the soil is naturally shaded by a mix of taller plants including daylilies and azaleas, some low-growing geranium and sedum and a small amount of mulch.

Pasture Bars

He found the Jerseys waiting patiently,
Grouped near the bars beneath the pasture hill,
Calm-eyed, serene, a part of patient days
And seasons going by with footsteps still.

With grave regard they watched the bar's release
Bring freedom and the fresh, sweet wayside grass
And homeward turned sedately, while he paused
Waiting the pleasure of an idling lass.

And then delayed beside the open bars,
Beyond which he could see the dark hills' blue
Changing to gold and rose, for one last need
To let the sunset through!

Don't Have a Cow!

by Burr Morse

Every day lately we have been juggling up syrup preparing for all the visitors coming soon to see Vermont's beautiful fall foliage. In addition to that heavenly aroma of maple syrup heating up and, of course, the ample opportunity to taste-test lots of it, my juggling job has stimulated some bitter-sweet nostalgia. We recently added a new filter press to our syrup canning line. This new press works off a diaphragm pump instead of a gear-driven one and the sound it makes, "chir-chit-chir-chit-chir-chit", is reminiscent of the sounds made by pulsating milking machines that I grew up hearing. I heard those pulses seven days a week, 365 days a year...that's the "bitter" part. I much prefer our new farm venture, serving a clientele that appreciates sweet syrup instead of sweet hay.

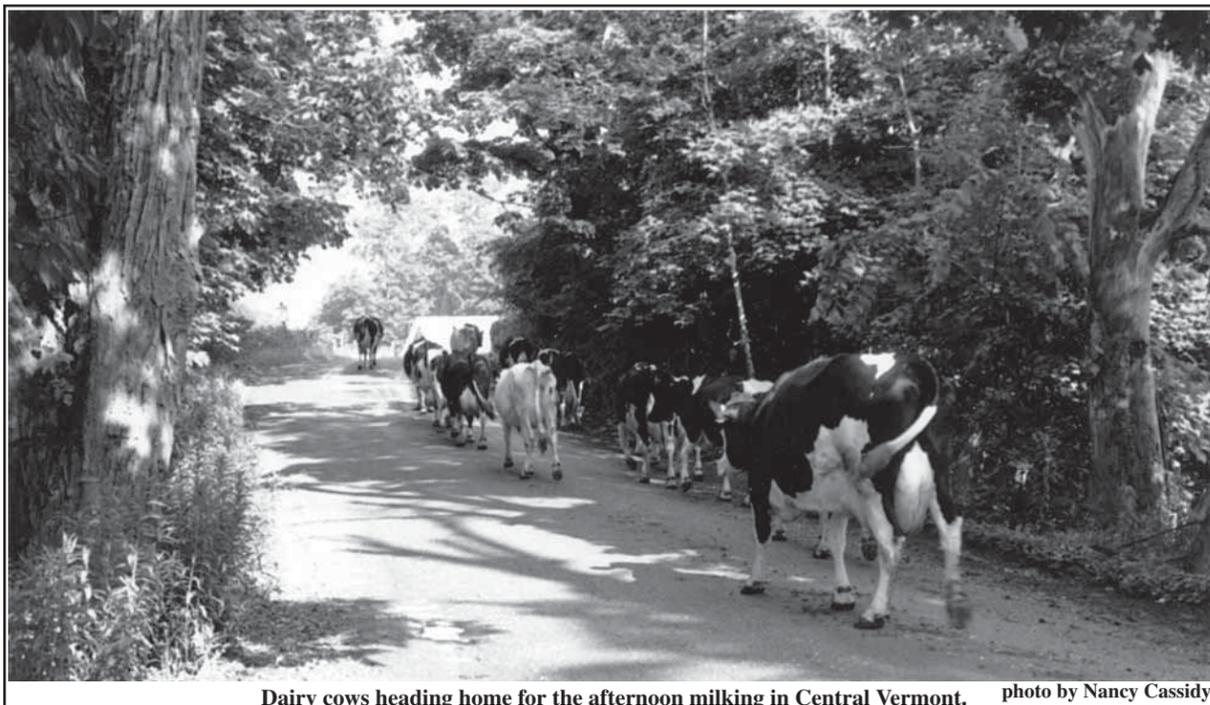

Another barn sound that I remember comes from way back before the State of Vermont mandated cooled bulk tanks for milk storage. Farmers back then put their milk in ten gallon steel milk cans. The covers fit so tightly into the top of the cans that they had to be pounded off to be opened. We kept an eighteen inch-long piece of iron pipe for that purpose which made a "clang, clang, clang" sound all over the farm. Our house was about a quarter-mile up the road from our cow barn and sometimes when school was in session, I was lucky enough to escape the morning barn chores. On those occasions, the clanging music made me know that someone else was doing the work...hooray! I always knew, though, that my only reprieve from those cursed chores necessitated a "clang" of a different nature—a school bell.

"...and sometimes when school was in session, I was lucky enough to escape the morning barn chores."

Of course there was also the animal sounds coming from our farm. Milking time meant "grain" time for the girls and they sure let us know. To this day, I look down the road at our old grey cow barn, uninhabited by milk cows for many years now, expecting to hear that chorus of pleading "Moos.....". And then there were the calves whose high-pitched blats hurt my ears. Calves are generally thought of as cute, cuddly things but to me, they were nothing but noisy, sucking annoyances. The job of feeding them often falls to younger family members and I, being the youngest kid, got it by the pen-full. In addition to their painful blats, they wanted to suck on my shirt sleeves and pant legs and I never felt like anyone's "mommy."

Despite the memories the calves conjure up, I rather like the "milking machine" sounds coming from down in our syrup canning room these days. Back in my youth, there were many pieces farming that bring memories to mind, often crowding out the ones I would gladly go back and do again. But as I have said before, when looking at the past through the lens of nostalgia, somehow the "bitter" gets filtered out leaving just those "sweet" recollections.

Burlington, VT

13th Annual Burlington Book Festival—It's One for the Books!

The 13th Annual Burlington Book Festival, taking place September 15-17 at The Burlington City Arts Center, Contois Auditorium in Burlington, VT and a variety of downtown venues, is not only Vermont's largest annual literary event but the region's only free three-day celebration of the written word.

Since 2005, no organization in the area has done more to promote and advance the pivotal cause of literacy without charging a single cent. Over the past thirteen years, the Festival has made it possible for thousands and thousands of children, students, visitors and community members to attend readings by and interact with many of the greatest writers of our time.

A stellar lineup of guests, past and present

These include U.S. Poet Laureates Tracey K. Smith (also a Pulitzer Prize winner) Philip Levine, Charles Simic, Maxine Kumin and Rita Dove. Countless Pulitzer Prize winners have appeared such as Ron Powers, Yusef Komunyakaa, Vijay Seshadri, Grace Paley, Barbara Walsh, Galway Kinnell and Paul Muldoon.

Literary luminaries that have participated include Alistair MacLeod, Robert Bly, Rick Moody, Howard Norman, Elinor Lipman, Chris Ware, Jennifer Haigh, Garret Keizer, Jeff Danziger, Russell Banks, Gregory Maguire, Ann Beattie, Kim Addonizio, Rebecca Makkai, Leslie Jamison, Chase Twichell, Marie Howe, Amy Hempel, Rolling Stone contributing editors Michael Hastings and Anthony DeCurtis, New Yorker legends Ed Koren and Harry Bliss, Brooklyn Poet Laureate Tina Chang, Newbery Award-winning children's author Paul Fleischman, and Tony Hoagland, winner of the Mark Twain Prize.

National Book Critics Circle Award recipients Mary Jo Bang, C.D. Wright, Edward Hirsch and Blake Bailey as well as National Book Award winners Ellen Bryant Voigt, Katherine Paterson, Ruth Stone and M.T. Anderson along with Joyce Carol Oates have appeared, among many others.

Speaking at this year's Festival

More authors are about to be added to the list, according to Kisonak. On the way to this September's "literary shindig," are international luminaries like Mark Leyner, David Lehman, Melissa Febos and New York City poet, critic, and performer J. Mae Barizo, whose past collaborators include Beyoncé, Jay-Z and Kanye West.

Founding Director Rick Kisonak says he finds it hard to believe he's had the good fortune to meet and, in many cases become friends with, so many of his idols. "I grew up in Maine. In those days, you were more likely to meet a cosmonaut marching through the town square playing the tuba than a famous author. I look at the list of authors contributing to the Festival and I have to shake my head."

Programs, readings, family events, and more!

Among other firsts, this year's celebration will feature a Virtual Reality demo courtesy of Champlain College's Emergent Media Center. There will be a silent auction of selected volumes from the personal collection of rock legend Warren Zevon, who died in 2003, along with a talk by the singer-songwriter and musician's wife, Crystal and daughter, Ariel.

The UVM Medical Center is sponsoring The First Annual John Elder Robison Roundtable, where families grappling with the challenges of raising children with special needs can pick the brain of the bestselling author, one of the world's foremost authorities on Autism Spectrum Disorder. "John is amazing," Kisonak says. "He conceived of those famous special effects guitars for KISS and created electronic games for Milton Bradley. Then found out what Asperger's Syndrome is and that he'd been struggling with it all his life."

Then there's "The Canadians Are Coming!," a day-long program of with several of the country's most and acclaimed writers headlined by the Governor General's Award-winning poet, playwright, painter, photographer, prize-winning filmmaker and politician (as in the 29th Lieutenant Governor of New Brunswick) Hermenegilde Chiasson. The current political climate inspired the idea for this cultural exchange, Kisonak explains, "I thought it might be nice if an international incident engendered fun and friendship for a change."

The Festival promises three days of free readings, signings, workshops, film screenings, panels, musical performances, lectures, original theater, world class cultural & political satire, demos, exhibits, student presentations, book launches, family events, and the triumphant return of the Boston Type-writer Orchestra!

A heartfelt dedication to Senator Patrick Leahy

This year's Festival is dedicated to Senator Patrick Leahy. "The world's at the snapping point," Kisonak reflects. "A handful of sane men and women are holding things together, giving hope to the whole planet, that order and reason will be restored. He's one of those precious people." Vermont's senior Senator and, in fact, the nation's senior Senator, Leahy will accept the honor at the Festival's Opening Ceremonies on Friday, September 15 at 7 p.m. in Contois Auditorium.

The 2017 Burlington Book Festival promises to be a memorable chapter in a season of celebrations.

Super Women—Six Scientists Who Changed the World

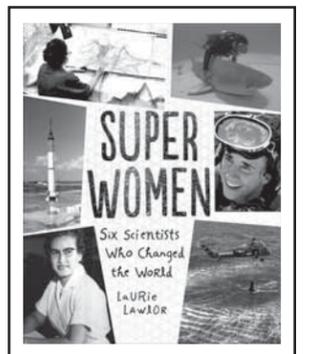

Through the years women traditionally have been discouraged or regularly banned from careers in science, mathematics, medicine and other fields dominated by men.

But in Super Women – Six Scientists Who Changed the World by Laurie Lawlor ($17.95, Holiday House, www.holidayhouse.com) you can learn about women who shared a passion for discovery and who succeeded while being discriminated against not only because they were women, but in some cases because they were members of a minority.

If you have or know a little girl who has an interest in science or math, she will be encouraged and thrilled by these women's stories.

- Marine scientist Eugenie Clark, known as Shark Lady, led hundreds of expeditions and logged more than 7,000 hours underwater, including leading the first team of women aquanauts in 1970. Throughout her life of 92 years she worked hard to mentor and inspire women and minorities to become marine biologists. She was Japanese-American.

- Medical researcher Gertrude Elion, winner of the Nobel Prize for her work on life-saving medications, including drugs that made organ transplants possible and the antiviral drug acyclovir "that targets infected cells and not healthy ones." After graduating from Hunter College she applied for fellowships at 15 graduate schools but was turned down because she was a woman. Her first job in 1944 was as a lab assistant for $50 a week.

- Cartographer Marie Tharp, a geologist who created the first World Ocean Floor map. Although she had more academic experience than her superiors she would never be granted permission to go aboard a research ship.
- Florence Hawly Ellis, a pioneering archeologist of the American Southwest, who was told point-blank that men would refuse to work for a female boss on her first organized dig.

- Eleanor Margaret Burbidge, an astronomer whose discoveries changed how we see galaxies and quasars. Most of her life she was offered menial jobs until she was finally hired as Director of the Royal Greenwich Observatory in Great Britain. She was the first woman president of the American Astronomical Society.

Grown-ups, women and men, will also be surprised by these women's lives.

The Book of Greens

A Cook's Compendium

by Jenn Louis with Kathleen Squires

($35, Ten Speed Press, www.crownpublishing.com)

Many of us will never forget as children being told "to eat your vegetables." Making the command worse was a follow-up threat that if we didn't eat them there would be no dessert.

So early on vegetables including all sorts of greens got a bad rap. It didn't help that usually the vegetables were over-cooked, dark olive green in color and not bright green, and that any flavor they might have had was boiled out of them.

Now, years later, you should be willing to at least give greens another try, with encouragement and help from The Book of Greens by Jenn Louis with Kathleen Squires. You will be introduced to 40 varieties of greens, some you have never heard of, and how to blanch and cook them to perfection, with more than 175 tempting recipes to bring out the flavor and uniqueness.

If you have been in the habit of overcooking vegetables, author Jenn's advice is to "toss them out. Once you've taken chlorophyll to the point where the color turns deep army green, the greens no longer taste good. Chalk it up to a learning experience." And start over.

The author gives the best method for cooking each green: pan-fried, deep-fried, sautéed, roasted, grilled, braised, baked, boiled, stir-fried, steamed, "wilted in soups or stews," made into a soup or sauce, stewed and simmered, served raw or made into a puree.

From her recipes one learns what seasonings to use and what combinations of greens go well together. Her most commonly used additions and seasonings include anchovies, cheeses, fish sauce, miso, extra-virgin olive oil, sesame oil, other vegetable oils, lard, three types of salt (kosher, fine or flaky sea salt), spices, stocks, vinegars, and wines.

The author has many surprises for us including ways to use as many parts of the vegetable as possible. In a section entitled "Root, Fruit and Vegetable Greens", we learn that greens from carrots, cauliflower, broccoli, celery, squash, sweet potatoes and even the leaves from tomatoes can be eaten and should not be thrown away.

And Jenn writes: "Incredibly aromatic, tomato leaves, despite what you may have heard, are not poisonous. Quite simply, they taste like they smell: intense and slightly perfumed, and they are also packed with nutrients." She says these unusual greens can be delicious simmered in soups and stews, boiled, braised and steamed and she offers recipes for each of these greens. For example, for carrots there is a recipe for Carrot Leaves in Cabbage Salad with Dates and Almonds as well as Roasted Trout with Carrot Greens Salsa Verde.

This 350-page salute to greens has many, full-page, stunning photographs of the greens alone, but also delicious-looking dishes with greens as the main ingredient. Some that triggered our appetites: Manila Clams with Sorrel and Cream; Salted Herbs with Vietnamese Coriander; Swiss Chard Polenta; and Tender Bok Choy Salad with Chicken and Orange.

All greens have a variety of names, some quite humorous and far-out. As a cook's bonus Jenn gives the other names for each green or its varieties in her book. Here are those for nettles: Ball, Bull, Carolina Horse, Dead, Dumb, False, Flame, Hedge, Hemp, Himalayan Giant, Horse, Painted, Robust Horse, Rock Silver Leaf, Small-Leaf, Spurge, Stinging, Texas, Tree, Western Horse, White, White Horse and Wood. Nettles are one of the first wild greens to surface from the winter chill. They have a nutty, earthy flavor but they need care in handling.

Jenn recommends shoppers try the unfamiliar greens with strange names one sees at farmers' markets, green-grocers, or at farm stands. And she writes "don't be afraid to taste a leaf, especially at a farmers market. Is the flavor right? Is the texture as it should be (crisp, firm, succulent) depending on the variety?"

Here are a few greens with unfamiliar names that she encourages you to try: Amaranth—also known as African spinach with bright green or green with red and purple leaves; Cardoon—looks like celery but tastes like artichoke; Celtuce—a Chinese lettuce with a nutty, cucumber-esq flavor; Mal-low—used in the Middle East as a thickener of soups and stews, much like okra; Red Orach—sometimes called mountain spinach or giant lambs-quarters, used in Italy to color pasta; Spigarello—a leafy variety of broccoli; and Tatsoi—an Asia salad green with a mustardy flavor.

Book Review by Charles Sutton

If your children grow to like greens, too, they will still want dessert. Try Pan di Zucchero and Apple Tart with tarragon and honey. It's made with an escarole-like chickory which lends a very vegetal flavor to this recipe. You can offer them ice cream made out of leaves from the tropical screw-pine called Pandan, which the author says is an amazing coconutty, herbal flavor with a cool richness. There's also a recipe for Celery Leaf and Heart Chartreuse Sherbet which the author says is "delicate, tart and flavorful." Author Jenn Louis who lives in Portland, OR, was named one of the Food & Wine magazine's Best New Chefs. Co-author Kathleen Squires is a food and travel writer based in New York City. The photographs are by Ed Anderson.

Clean Soups—Simple, Nourishing Recipes for Health and Vitality

by Rebecca Katz with Mat Edelson

($22, Ten Speed Press, www.crownpublishing.com)

What's the first remedy one thinks of when someone isn't feeling well—a steaming bowl of chicken noodle soup! Usually this is a big help. In fact soups in general are comforting foods especially if they aren't too watery and have a good flavor.

Clean Soups by author and chef Rebecca Katz is an excellent guide for 60 soups that not only taste good, but are nourishing and healthy.

Her success depends on starting with home-made stocks or broths—seven choices: magic mineral, Thai coconut, chicken magic mineral, old-fashioned chicken, immune, nourishing bone, and pastured beef bone broths. Carefully prepared and seasoned, they are made ahead of time stored in the refrigerator for to five days and in the freezer for up to six months. She recommends the best broth to be used for each soup.

Her magic mineral broth, used as a base for 30 soup recipes, is made out of carrots, onions, leeks, celery, potatoes, yams, sweet potatoes, seasoned with garlic, parsley, peppercorns, bay leaves, sea salt, whole allspice and the seaweed Kombu.

"It's a veritable veggie-palooka and can be used for nearly all the soups in the book. In a bowl or sipped as tea, it's the perfect cleansing broth," Katz writes.

Curious about immune broth? It is made out of burdock root, shiitake mushrooms, ginger and garlic to create a delicious earthy healthy broth.

Among soups using chicken stock are Power Green Soup made with kale and chard and plenty of lemon juice; Sweet Pea and Mint Soup; Zucchini Soup with Basil; Escarole Soup; and Very Gingerly and Garlicky Chicken Soup.

Here's your chance try other-world soups: Mulligatawny (Indian for 'pepper water' made with lots of veggies, peppers, cream and curry power); Kitchari (a 1,000 year old staple of India and Pakistan made with basmati rice, mung beans and ghee); Pho (a traditional Vietnamese chicken-based soup garnished with sliced jalapeños, mung bean sprouts, Thai basil, and mint; and Greek Cucumber Yogurt Soup.

The recipes are grouped according to nourishing broths, blended soups, and traditional healing soups. The author suggests a dozen toppings including parsnip chips, polenta crotons, kale crumbles, and several salsas.

Katz also is the author of The Cancer-Fighting Kitchen, The Longevity Kitchen and The Healthy Mind Cookbook. Co-author Mat Edelson is an award-winning science, health and sports writer.
